Making Things Happen

This year's Special Report on Philanthropy details a pivotal event in our University's history: the dedication of the Christine and Steven F. Udvar-Hazy Library and Learning Center on our Prescott Campus. I call this event pivotal because it illustrates the power of philanthropy and the vital role it plays in the advancement of our institution.

Philanthropy makes things happen at Embry-Riddle. Not only does it build libraries and other state-of-the-art facilities, it funds scholarships, cutting-edge research and technology, and new academic programs that keep our graduates at the forefront of industry.

Philanthropy also engages our community of alumni and friends in the progress and prosperity of the University. As we raise the bar in our mission to be the leader in aviation and aerospace education, our donors get to see their contributions hard at work advancing the quality of education, training and research.

This was another strong year for philanthropy at Embry-Riddle. Our progress over the last two fiscal years has been unprecedented. Fiscal Years 2007 and 2008 represent the most successful consecutive fundraising years in our University's history, with a combined total of $16.4 million.

In these pages are the names of all who have helped us set this new standard in generosity. I would like to express my deepest appreciation to all who share in our vision to be the "World's Leader in Aviation and Aerospace Education." With your passionate support, we will continue the legacy of greatness that defines our extraordinary University.

Warmest regards,

John P. Johnson, Ph.D.
President

A Dedication to Education

New graduates celebrate after their commencement ceremonies at the new Hazy Library and Learning Center

Christine and Steven Udvar-Hazy dedicate new library at Prescott Campus

On May 3, 2008, two of the most prominent names in aviation and education became a lasting fixture on Embry-Riddle's Prescott Campus. Before a throng of new Embry-Riddle graduates and their families, faculty, staff, and various supporters, Steven Udvar-Hazy and his wife, Christine, ushered in a new era at Embry-Riddle as they helped dedicate the new Christine and Steven F. Udvar-Hazy Library and Learning Center.

"This library, which was really just a dream seven or eight years ago, has finally become a reality," said Steven Hazy, founder, chairman and CEO of International Lease Finance Corporation. "As the student population continues to grow here and the university adds more programs, this library will serve a key function in that progress."

"We're very proud of it," Christine Hazy added. "This dramatic building, beautifully centered on campus, is a remarkable testament to what this university is about: a place for knowledge gathering and personalized education."

In 2002, the Hazys made an historic gift to help construct two of the Prescott Campus' most distinctive landmarks: the Library and Learning Center and the Academic Complex Building. Their generosity launched a new era of campus growth that came to be known as the "Prescott Campus Renaissance."

The Hazys' transformative gift began where most things begin with Embry-Riddle: in the sky. Their two sons and two daughters all launched their flight training through summer programs at Embry-Riddle's Prescott Campus. "Our children were the ones who introduced us to this incredible campus," Christine said. "We knew that Embry-Riddle was the right place to send our children for flight training."

For Christine, flight training had always been a family affair. Her father, who flew T-6s and amphibian PBYS during World War II, received flight training from her mother. "My mother operated a Link Trainer, which is an archaic example of what a simulator is today," Christine explained. "She helped train many pilots during the war."

Steven Hazy's decision to provide a lead gift for what he calls a "magnificent library" harkens back to the library of his early childhood days in 1950s communist Hungary: "Our library was a 15-by-20-foot wooden building that used to be a barn." Hazy recalled. "We had maybe a couple hundred books that dated back to the pre-World War II days and a few communist doctrine books."

With the challenging circumstances of his youth in mind, Steven Hazy hopes to provide today's aviation-minded students with the resources and opportunities to advance their education and personal goals. "I look at this library as a fountain of knowledge where students can gather to satisfy their curiosity, interact with one another, hatch new ideas and think in a whole new dimension."

At the dedication ceremony, Steven Hazy also took the opportunity to thank others for their key role in the Prescott Campus progress: "While our gift might have sparked campus growth, there were many other donors whose years of faithful service and financial support made it possible. I would like to extend my hand to them in thanks for their support of this magnificent library and amazing campus."

Harry Robertson (right) and wife, Jean, chat with a fellow supporter before the dedication ceremony. Harry Robertson's leadership gift of $500,000 helped fund construction of the Hazy Library and Learning Center.

Caroline Daniels (pictured here with President John Johnson and Embry-Riddle Trustee Mori Hosseini) is an avid supporter of Embry-Riddle. Daniels' company, Aircraft Technical Publishers (ATP), contributed $50,000 to name the ATP Group Study Room in the Hazy Library and Learning Center.

Fiscal Year 2008

Total Giving

$6,209,105

Embry-Riddle closed out Fiscal Year 2008 with another strong year of fundraising, with gifts and pledges totaling $6.2 million.

Aeronautical science students will find new opportunities for scholarships, thanks to gifts from new donors like De Rhoads Dolan (featured on page 15). Embry-Riddle donors contributed more than $4.6 million to scholarships and fellowships, with $1.2 million available for immediate use.

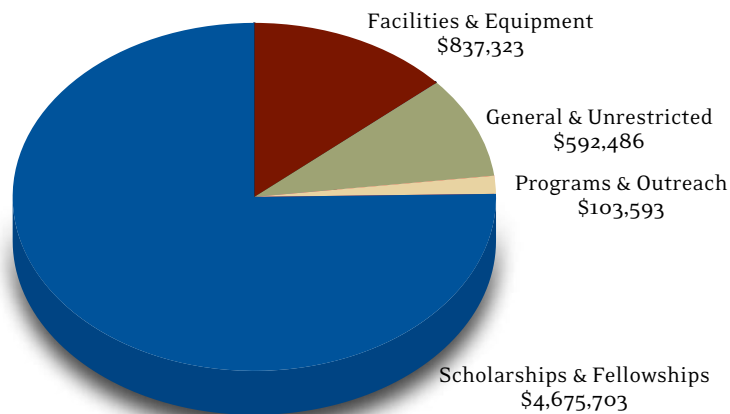

For the third year in a row, Embry-Riddle continued its trend of securing future investment, with deferred and planned gifts totaling $3.5 million, up $300,000 from the previous year.

Embry-Riddle also continued its commitment to develop innovative research programs, and those projects are often supported by private philanthropy. Gifts from GrayMatter Inc. established the Drakunov Physical Sciences Research Fund to provide faculty and students the resources they need to develop new technologies and apply them to real world challenges.

Exciting gifts are leading the way for some encouraging developments in alumni giving. The percentage of alumni who have made a gift to Embry-Riddle during the To Soar Campaign has risen steadily each year—now at 7.45 percent.

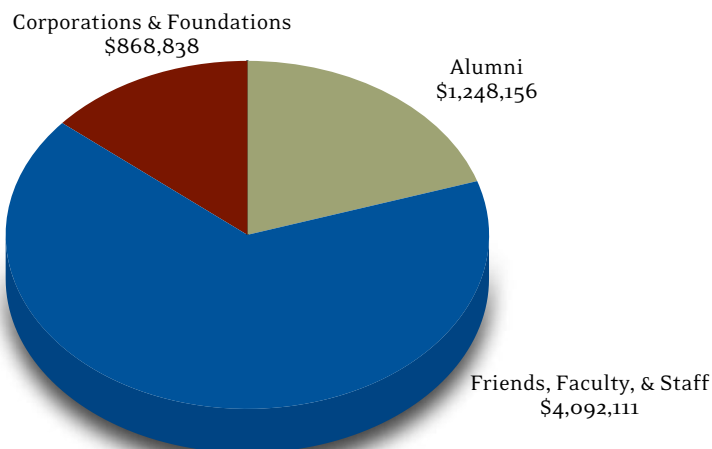

On the following pages are the names of those who have sent a clear message of support to advance the University's goals. Their contributions build momentum and create an active community of engagement that is absolutely vital to the ultimate success of the To Soar Campaign and to Embry-Riddle.

Leadership Gift Societies

Through their support and enthusiasm for our mission, members of our Leadership Gift Societies not only help us maintain the educational programs and the physical components of Embry-Riddle's campuses—the desks, the library books, the training technology—but also the intangible qualities of a leading university: the sense of community, the respect for tradition, and the recognition of achievement.

To recognize the generosity of these donors, Embry-Riddle has established these Leadership Gift Societies:

The Jack R. Hunt Society

Named for Embry-Riddle's first president, the Jack R. Hunt Society honors donors whose lifetime giving to the University totals $1 million or more.

The John Paul Riddle Society

Honoring a founder of the University, the John Paul Riddle Society recognizes donors who make lifetime contributions totaling at least $500,000.

The T. Higbee Embry Society

Named for John Paul Riddle's entrepreneurial partner, the T. Higbee Embry Society recognizes donors with lifetime contributions of $100,000.

The Legacy Society

Recognizing donors who include Embry-Riddle in their estate, the Legacy Society supports multiple generations of aeronautical leaders.

Annual Gift Societies and Clubs

Embry-Riddle's annual gift societies and clubs recognize the generosity of those donors whose annual financial support demonstrates their dedication to the future of aviation and aerospace education.

The Eagle Society

The Eagle Society was established in 1986 to support academic programs and student opportunities in all areas. Today, the dollars donors invest not only enhance general programs and operations but furnish scholarship funds for deserving students and help the university acquire state-of-the-art technology and library resources.

To recognize the commitment of these donors, the Eagle Society has established four gift societies:

Platinum Eagles

Through gifts of $10,000 or more each year, Platinum Eagles help shape the future of Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University.

Gold Eagles

By making annual gifts of $5,000 or more, Gold Eagles secure Embry-Riddle's position as an outstanding institution of higher education.

Silver Eagles

Through annual support of $2,500 or more, Silver Eagles build the unsurpassed training programs that have become a hallmark of our university.

Bronze Eagles

Through annual support of at least $1,000, Bronze Eagles help us soar to new heights in educational achievement.

Annual Fund Gift Clubs

Our Annual Fund gift clubs recognize and honor individuals who contribute up to $999 a year. Levels of membership are:

Squadron 500—Annual gifts totaling $500 to $999 Squadron 100—Annual gifts totaling $100 to $249
Squadron 250—Annual gifts totaling $250 to $499 Cadet—Annual gifts totaling less than $100

I believe in supporting and expressing my confidence in my Alma Mater. It is the institution that formed my professional and engineering set of tools as I entered the workforce. Embry-Riddle's education provided a strong background in engineering sciences that I have applied for many years. I hold Embry-Riddle dear to my formation, and I wanted to express my appreciation with a gift. I also wanted to support the education of underprivileged students that yearn for an opportunity to work in the aerospace field.

A Banner Year for the Eagles

No matter how you look at it, Embry-Riddle Daytona Beach Athletics had a banner year. Whether on the field, in the classroom, or on the fundraising front, the Eagles program enjoyed record or near-record achievements.

On the field, it was the best year in the Eagles' 20-year history, finishing as the third best NAIA program in the country—out of nearly 300 programs—in the United States Sports Academy Director's Cup.

In the classroom, Embry-Riddle student athletes continued to stand out with a cumulative 3.01 GPA, higher than the overall student body GPA for the ninth year in a row.

And on the fundraising front, Embry-Riddle celebrated a record 350 attendees and raised more than $90,000 at its fourth annual Blue & Gold Gala. Athletic Director Steve Ridder still marvels at the success.

"Wow! Without a doubt, this was the greatest year this program has ever experienced," Ridder says.

Ridder points to events like the Blue & Gold Gala dinner and silent auction as proof that strong philanthropic support can play a role in program success. "Our students benefit greatly because of the generosity of so many."

With its record number of attendees, this year's Gala featured many sponsors who took their support to a new level. For the fourth year in a row, Daytona Mitsubishi, owned by Embry-Riddle alumnus, Richard Nisbett, was the presenting sponsor. But this year, Nisbett and his team launched the gala to new heights by donating a 2008 Mitsubishi Galant to the live auction.

A record 350 supporters attended the April 2008 Blue & Gold Gala, raising more than $90,000 for athletics programs at Embry-Riddle–Daytona Beach.

General sponsorship grew too, with 50 total sponsors, including 24 at the Platinum Level of $1,000, up from 18 a year ago. Dorothee Miller and Halifax Health contributed at the Triple Platinum Level of $5,000, ensuring another great year for the student-athletes in the program.

For the silent auction portion of the event, Daytona Beach area businesses, friends, faculty, staff and on-campus organizations donated a record 210 items to attract bidders—including autographed pin flags of the four 2007 PGA major championship winners and a barbecue and pool party with the Embry-Riddle men's basketball team at the home of Embry-Riddle President Dr. John P. Johnson.

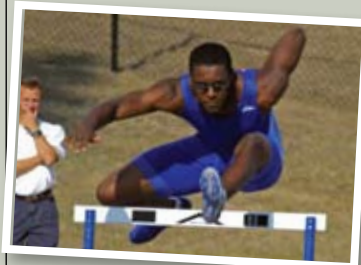

For Steve Ridder, the outpouring of support speaks volumes about the generosity of the Embry-Riddle community.

"Events like the Blue & Gold Gala bring to light just how fortunate we are to have such great relationships with folks in the Embry-Riddle community over these past 20 years," Ridder says. "We don't take these relationships for granted. We are truly thankful for the continued interest and vital support of this community that makes Embry-Riddle Athletics such a very special program."

Putting Value Above Cost

De Rhoads Dolan creates the Arthur F. Tweedie Memorial Scholarship Endowment to honor husband and to help students experience the true value of education

Kenneth W. Anderson Photography

De Rhoads Dolan can appreciate on a personal level how aviation can enrich one's life. She and her husband, Arthur Tweedie, spent many days flying over Arizona's famously breathtaking southwestern scenery. "We enjoyed flying together around the local Prescott and Sedona areas," Dolan recalls.

When Tweedie, a retired aeronautical engineer, passed away in 2002, Dolan knew she wanted to do something special in his memory that would add value to the lives of others who shared his passion for flight. She didn't have to look far before finding the ideal place to honor her husband's legacy. "He was always interested in the field of aeronautics, and it was his desire to support students with the same interests and goals," she says. "Embry-Riddle's Prescott Campus was a perfect place to do just that."

So Dolan established the Arthur F. Tweedie Memorial Scholarship Endowment as a way to honor her husband and support Prescott Campus students seeking a degree in Aerospace Engineering, with a preference for those pursuing a pilot's license.

"When we decided to make a gift at Embry-Riddle, a scholarship was the only kind we considered," says Dolan.

"We wanted to impact students on a personal level and believed this was the best way to do that."

As the scholarship's first recipient, sophomore Taylor Ellington is already feeling a personal impact. "I am honored to receive the Arthur Tweedie Memorial Scholarship," Ellington says. An Air Force ROTC cadet and aerospace engineering student, Ellington plans to use his aerospace engineering degree and private pilot's license to become a military officer and pilot. "It means a lot to me and will help me continue my studies here at Embry-Riddle."

Ellington is a prime example of why Dolan established the Tweedie Memorial Scholarship. By taking some of the education costs out of the equation, Dolan believes, the scholarship will allow students to focus on their personal enrichment and professional achievement. For Dolan, it is about putting value above cost. "We believe everyone who wants an education should be able to get one. The value of earning an education should always outweigh the cost of it," says Dolan.

There is going to be a sea change in the way people interact with avionics and the way autonomy will be introduced into our everyday lives in automobiles and related technologies. That changeover is going to take really high-level thinkers and researchers to make it easy and intuitive. We'll have to have our best and brightest working on it.

Michael T. Gray, Chairman of the Board, GrayMatter Inc., on why GrayMatter Inc., contributed $50,000 to establish the Drakunov Physical Sciences Research Fund, which provides critical support for research occurring within the Department of Physical Sciences at Embry-Riddle's Daytona Campus.

GrayMatter's contribution to establish the Drakunov Physical Sciences Research Fund honors Embry-Riddle Engineering Physics Professor Dr. Sergey Drakunov (second row, second from left), whose innovative work in autonomous steering helped GrayMatter reach the semifinals of the Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) 2007 Urban Challenge, a race for autonomous vehicles.

Portrait in Annual Giving:

Dr. Richard Felton, Associate Dean,
College of Engineering, Prescott Campus

Building our future one gift at a time

Dr. Richard Felton's ongoing support over 19-plus years has provided vital resources for the College of Engineering at the Prescott Campus.

Dr. Richard Felton, associate dean in the Prescott Campus' College of Engineering, is working on his twentieth consecutive year as a contributor to Embry-Riddle's Annual Fund. As one might expect from so many years of dedicated support, Dr. Felton discovered the power of giving a long time ago.

Felton was a college senior at the time. He and his wife, Gloria, were on a tight budget, with only a few dollars left over at the end of each month. One cold Saturday evening, they decided to buy a newspaper from a woman selling them from a covered entrance of a nearby store. As he approached the entrance, he noticed two small children bundled up in a blanket in the rear corner.

"I handed the woman a 50-cent piece and as she started to give me the change, I decided to let her keep it," Felton recalls. "I turned to leave and she thanked me a thousand times as I departed. It was so little, but to her it was an enormous amount."

It was a powerful moment for Dr. Felton. "I had tears in my eyes when I got back to my wife," he recalls. Felton suddenly understood one of the fundamental truths of giving: Even small gifts can make a world of difference to the receiver.

That's why for nearly 20 years Dr. Felton has been contributing to Embry-Riddle's Annual Fund to support the College of Engineering at the Prescott Campus. He has seen on a personal level what a small gift can do. Felton believes that by specifically supporting education at the level one can afford, contributors can magnify the impact of their gift. "There are many worthy organizations to give to, but education allows individuals to improve the world in many ways," Felton says. "An extra dollar or two, along with others' donations, can have a huge impact on the future. Every dollar is important."

ISTAT Gift keeps student press and media running

The International Society of Transport Aircraft Trading (ISTAT) Foundation contributed $60,000 to help repair student offices housing The Avion student newspaper and the campus radio station, WERU. Both offices were heavily damaged during the 2006 Christmas Day tornado.

Established in 1995, the ISTAT Foundation provides funds for scholarships, educational programs and grants to qualified individuals and institutions that promote the advancement of commercial aviation and humanitarianism.

The ISTAT Foundation has been a supporter of Embry-Riddle students from its inception, contributing more than $170,000 to scholarships and other student needs over its 13-year existence.

"Embry-Riddle has been a wonderful partner with ISTAT in many ways over the years," said Roland Moore, ISTAT Trustee.

With its most recent gift, ISTAT was able to support its educational and humanitarian missions simultaneously. Not only did the gift help support Embry-Riddle's academic mission, but it also helped provide for students who suddenly found themselves "out of a home" when their offices were heavily damaged by the 2006 Christmas Day tornado.

"We were delighted to be able to support ERAU in its time of need with the humanitarian aid after the disastrous tornado that struck the campus," Moore said.

Aviation is a field we all love and support. NARA members have been heads of thriving businesses through many years and we want to give back to the industry that has sustained us. We want to see the industry continue, and the best way to do that is to support the youth coming up through the system and inspire them to pursue careers in aviation. It is well worth whatever effort any organization can make to support our future students, because education is what it's all about.

Scholarships: An Investment in Students

At Embry-Riddle, we believe that great students are the lifeblood of institutional excellence. Being the best at what we do begins with recruiting and retaining talented, qualified and motivated students who are dedicated to making a difference.

When donors support students at Embry-Riddle through scholarships and fellowships, they do more than help the university fulfill its mission: They also change lives.

Scholarships and graduate fellowships provide vital income that the University can offer students, giving them the security of guaranteed multiyear support and a lower debt burden upon graduation. For the aspiring student, that support can make the difference between just having a dream and making it come true.

Embry-Riddle would like to thank the following donors who have contributed more than $2,500 to term scholarships that provide annual support to our best and brightest:

Erin Gormley ('97, PC; '05, WW), Aerospace Engineer, Vehicle Recorders Division, National Transportation Safety Board, on why she chose to support the Career Services Co-op Assistance Award:

“As a student at ERAU, I knew doing a co-op would be a valuable experience in determining my future career path. After being accepted for various paid internships, I had a chance encounter that led to an interview for a co-op with the NTSB, my dream job. I was offered an unpaid internship, which I accepted immediately, and was left to figure out how I would afford it. Fortunately, I was in a position to accept that opportunity and I attribute it to the start of my successful career. When I saw the Career Services Co-op Assistance Award, I was reminded of that experience. I saw friends turn down jobs and co-ops for financial reasons and I thought contributing might make the decision easier for someone else. To receive some financial support and encouragement from those who made it through ahead of you can make life a little easier.”

There is a great satisfaction in helping out young, eager students and being able to share in their accomplishments as they have their own successes. I think supporting Embry-Riddle is a great way to make that happen.”

Florida Airports Council supports the next generation of airport managers

While most individuals and organizations make direct contributions to the University, there are a significant number who contribute to the Embry-Riddle mission by directly supporting its most important asset: students. In the past year, more than 300 organizations and individuals provided more than $1.1 million in support of Embry-Riddle students directly through scholarships.

The Florida Airports Council (FAC) is one such leading organization. Dedicated to training the next generation of airport managers in Florida, FAC has partnered with Embry-Riddle to ensure that students become managers who are prepared for future industry challenges.

Organizations like the Florida Airports Council are helping Embry-Riddle students prepare to become the next generation of airport managers.

“Embry Riddle students have been invaluable assets at airports throughout Florida for many years, working internships at large and small airports alike,” says FAC Executive Director Bill Johnson. “The airports benefit by having eager, knowledgeable, and conscientious assistants to help manage, improve, and expand their airports into what is widely regarded as the finest airport system in the nation. The Council truly values its partnership with ERAU and our goal is to help even more in the future.”

In addition to FAC’s longstanding support, Embry-Riddle would like to acknowledge those other individuals and organizations that provided $5,000 or more in scholarships to students attending Embry-Riddle:

Prescott Professor Denny Lessard Honors Family with Legacy Gift

Denny Lessard, chair of the Aeronautical Science Department at Embry-Riddle Prescott, has always been about family. But when Lessard thinks family, he thinks beyond the immediate to include those earlier generations of Lessards who spent their lives making Arizona a better place to live.

So it was only natural that when Denny and his wife, Deborah, decided they wanted to show their dedication to Embry-Riddle and its students, they put a family spin on it. With a testamentary gift through their family trust, the Lessards established the Lessard Family Endowed Scholarship in Flight.

"This trust represents five generations of Lessards, living and working in Yavapai County," said Lessard. "From mining and ranching, to civil service and education, the Lessards have served their communities and helped develop the future of Arizona."

Once fully funded, the Lessard Family Endowment will provide scholarships for flight training and other related expenses to Arizona students seeking an Aeronautical Science Degree in preparation for a career in aviation as a pilot. But perhaps most important, the endowment will build a brighter future for Arizona.

"The Lessard Family has always believed in and supported their country, state and fellow residents who made Arizona a great place to live and work," said Lessard. "This endowment is dedicated to the education of future Arizona generations, so that they may have the opportunity to make further and greater contributions to their country and state through aviation."

THANK YOU

We would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your continued support of Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University.

Whether you are making a gift for the first time, or are continuing a longstanding tradition of giving to Embry-Riddle, you are playing an essential role in our success as the world's leader in aviation and aerospace education.

As we advance the Embry-Riddle mission and take on the great challenges to help propel the aviation industry into a new era of innovation and prosperity, we will need the vision and commitment of all who have a passion for aviation. Our leading position has not been achieved by one individual or even one generation. It is all of us together who have put us where we are today. And it is all of us together who must carry the University forward.

This special report on philanthropy celebrates all of you who have come together to express your commitment to aviation and aerospace education. With your passion to make a positive difference in the lives of those who share your love for flight, you have demonstrated your hope for aviation's future, and your willingness to invest in its success.

Thank you for your vision, your enthusiasm and your continued generosity in support of Embry-Riddle's mission.

Sincerely,

When you make a gift to Embry-Riddle's Annual Fund, you have a direct and immediate impact on students.

Every day, your support:

- Provides scholarships and fellowships to allow deserving students to complete their studies.
- Creates new opportunities for students to participate in research and meet "real-world" challenges in the classroom.
- Buys new equipment and keeps students on the cutting edge of technology.

The Annual Fund

Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University

Contributions to Embry-Riddle's Annual Fund do all these great things and much more daily in the lives of students. That's why there's no better way to make a difference today than to make a gift to the Annual Fund.
